The following are the levels of High Water of certain tides above the datum level referred to in the above Table :—

	Ft.	In.
Average High Water mark of Equinoctial Spring Tides	21	1
Average High Water of Spring Tides, including Equinoctial Tides	19	0½
(This is the High Water to which the range of Spring Tides, 27ft. 10½ins., quoted on pages 2, 4, 5, corresponds.)
Average High Water mark of ordinary Spring Tides, excluding the Equinoctial Tides	18	10
Average High Water Mark of ordinary Neap Tides	11	7
(This is the High Water to which the range of Neap Tides, 13ft. 0ins., quoted on pages 2, 4, 5, corresponds.)

To arrive at the depth of water over sill of any Dock upon any of these tides, add the depth of sill below the datum to the figures representing the levels of the tide required.

Numerous cranes at the above docks to lift up to 100 tons. A floating crane capable of dealing with loads of from 30 to 100 tons, and special appliances for the shipment of coal.

WAR SHIPS OF THE WORLD.

The War Ships of the various nations are in each case arranged as nearly as possible in the same order, viz., armour-clads, deck-protected cruisers, torpedo flotilla, unprotected cruisers. Further subdivisions are made according as the ships are seagoing or for coast service. In order to facilitate comparisons still further, Tables II, III, and IV have been added.

Information about the heavy marine artillery is contained in Table I. The details have in most cases been obtained from official sources. The initial velocity, weight of projectile, energy, and perforative power of the various guns are not always consistent; it has, therefore, been thought best only to make use of the figures representing the last quantity in compiling Table III.

In Tables II, III, and IV, the more important ships have been ranged according to their chief offensive and defensive powers, viz., speed, armament, and armour. The coal capacity and indicated horse-power are important factors in determining the radius of action of ships, and have therefore been included in each of these three tables. The power to withdraw to shallow waters has been considered an important defensive quality, and the mean draught for each ship has therefore been included in the particulars of Table IV. This table is arranged according to the protective power of the maximum thickness of iron armour of each ship. In case of compound or steel plates, their resistance has been assumed as 33 per cent. greater than iron, though their power of shattering chilled cast-iron projectiles, and their liability to be broken up rather than to be perforated like iron if struck sufficiently hard by a steel projectile, makes a strict comparison impossible.

The maximum thickness of armour of any part of a ship rather than the minimum, or than the thickness at the waterline or on the battery, has been chosen as a standard of comparison, as it must be assumed that those are the most vital or most exposed parts which are most heavily protected. Thus, coast-defence armour-clads, because of their low freeboard and great stability, and also of their activity being restricted to smooth and shallow water, have very much thinner protection for their waterline than for their guns, while in line-of-battle ships the reverse is often the case. In belted and deck-protected cruisers, the disposition of the armour is again different. Vessels of all these types are included in Table IV, and the resisting power of their armour can be compared with the penetrative power of the guns carried by other vessels as shown in Table III.

Table II, in which all war-ships of 100 tons and upwards with speeds exceeding 14 knots are contained, will be found useful as showing readily the war-ships of high speeds respectively possessed by different countries. It will also enable a comparison to be made by the owners of fast merchantmen between their ships and armed cruisers. It should be borne in mind that most of these speeds are those obtained on the contractors' official trials and are unlikely to be attained again, and that, for prolonged runs, 2 or more knots should be subtracted. Thus a 14-knot ship might be expected to steam 12 knots. The speeds of the Russian, German, and possibly French ships, are based on trials of more recent date.

LIST OF PUBLICATIONS ISSUED BY THE COMMITTEE OF LLOYD'S.

"LLOYD'S WEEKLY SHIPPING INDEX."

At the beginning of the year 1880, it was determined to publish Lloyd's Weekly Shipping Index of the movements of shipping.

There are recorded in the Weekly Index the movements of all British, American, Continental, and Colonial vessels, except—

1. United Kingdom Coasters, Yachts, and Whalers.
2. Continental vessels, on voyages from one port to another in the Continent of Europe between the White Sea and Gibraltar.
3. Movements of French and South of Europe vessels on voyages from one port to another between Dunkirk and any port in the Mediterranean.
4. Movements of vessels, British and Foreign, trading between U.K. ports and ports in the Continent of Europe as far south as Vigo, not inclusive.

The present rates of subscription to the Weekly Index are as follows:—

This work was published in October, 1882, and contains coloured drawings of the house flags and funnels of the British Steam Merchant Navy.

Price, £1 1s. per copy.

"MERCANTILE NAVY LIST," "INTERNATIONAL CODE OF SIGNALS," AND "BRITISH CODE LIST."

These books are edited by the Registrar-General of Seamen, and published by Lloyd's,

AND

"HINTS TO CAPTAINS OF THE MERCANTILE MARINE."

This book is distributed without cost by the Committee of Lloyd's to officers of the Mercantile Marine on application to the Secretary of Lloyd's.

The following EXTRACTS from the

"INSTRUCTIONS TO LLOYD'S AGENTS"

Are printed by request of the Committee of Lloyd's for the information of the Public.

Les EXTRAITS suivants pris dans les

"INSTRUCTIONS DONNÉES AUX AGENTS DU LLOYD'S"

ont été publiés sur la demande du Comité du Lloyd pour être portis à la connaissance du Public.

In dealing with the following instructions it is essential that Lloyd's Agent should understand that, according to English law, the master of a vessel has, as Agent of the shipowner, control over both ship and cargo, and is responsible for both. Nothing less than a special power can take away this control over the property confided to his charge; but the master can appoint an Agent, and it is presumed that he will, on behalf of the assured, or their representatives, readily avail himself of the assistance of an Agent who is specially appointed by Lloyd's, and whose co-operation will facilitate the settlement of loss or average with the underwriters.

In every act of interference, whether by advice or otherwise, the Agent is not to be considered as the representative of the underwriters upon any particular policy, except when he is specially instructed by such underwriters to that effect; but rather as a person whose duty it is, from the nature of his appointment, to protect underwriters from fraud, negligence, or mismanagement in the mode of treating property in peril or under average.

Telegraphic.—The special attention of the Agent is called to the necessity of telegraphing any report of the loss of a vessel or a casualty at once, and direct to Lloyd's. The Committee desire to impress very strongly the inconvenience and loss that may arise from a casualty not being reported at once. Where there is no telegraph the news should be transmitted by the quickest method.

War.—In the event of War, actual or impending, the Agent will at once telegraph the movements of all men-of-war and privateers likely to affect the interest of underwriters.

Shipping Lists.—The Agent will furnish, on the forms supplied by the Secretary and in accordance with the instructions received from him from time to time, prompt and regular advices of the arrival, sailing, and speaking of vessels. He should also send the names of vessels arriving with damage, or having damaged goods on board, which have been surveyed under his superintendence; and the names of such vessels with damaged goods as have not been surveyed under his superintendence, and the reasons that may have prevented him from attending the survey of the whole or any part of the damaged goods in each cargo. Supplies of shipping forms and envelopes can be had upon application to the Secretary of Lloyd's.

General Intelligence.—In addition to the above, the Agent is requested to keep the Committee informed on all points that he may consider of importance to underwriters.

The Agent is requested to keep the Committee informed upon all matters that he may consider of importance to Lloyd's, relating to claims, the over-loading of ships, or any other subject. He is also requested to furnish information with reference to any misconduct of masters of vessels.

The Agent should report when any vessel sails or arrives with deck cargo, or when she appears improperly laden for the voyage.

Abandonment.—In no case is the Agent to accept an abandonment of either ship or cargo as the representative of the underwriters: he must in all cases leave the persons who abandon to act upon their own responsibility.

Total Loss.—In case of shipwreck, the Agent will take charge of the property in the absence of the master or owner of the vessel or goods or any of their representatives or any legal authority, and he will make such arrangements for its protection and preservation as he may consider expedient. He will also give immediate advice of the circumstances to the assured, and follow their instructions in all cases where he can obtain them.

Surveyors.—Lloyd's Agent, if called upon to survey a ship, shall in all cases employ the Surveyor to Lloyd's Register of British and Foreign Shipping, if such an officer is stationed at or near the port; failing him, he will select the most competent person available, and he will take care that the Report of the Surveyor so selected shall be made on the same form as that attached to these Instructions.

Attendance of Master.—All surveys should be attended by the master of the vessel, who should also sign the certificate of survey. In case the master refuses to attend, or is prevented from attending, the Agent will note the fact on the certificate, and the reason of the master's absence.

Bottomry.—Particulars of Bottomry and Respondentia Bonds should in all cases be reported to the Committee. The raising of necessary funds by these means should not be resorted to unless credit cannot otherwise be obtained, and the owner should in all cases be previously communicated with, either by letter or by telegraph. The sale of vessels or cargoes at ports of arrival under these Bonds should also be reported.

Auctions.—In cases where combination amongst buyers is likely to defeat the integrity of a public sale, the Agent should see that sealed tenders are advertised for, if such a course can be legally pursued.

Auctioneers.—With a view to prevent frauds upon underwriters at public sales, the Agent should endeavour, whenever a sale is unavoidably necessary, to have a voice in the appointment of the Auctioneer, and he should see that due publicity of the sale is given in each case.

Stranding.—When a vessel is in distress, or on shore within the limits of his district, it is the duty of Lloyd's Agent to offer his services to the master.

Condemnation.—When it is proposed to condemn as unseaworthy a vessel that has sustained damage, the Agent is to use every means in his power to prevent such condemnation, unless it is evident that the vessel can only be repaired as a seaworthy ship at a cost exceeding her value after such repairs; but it is to be borne in mind that the cost of complete reinstatement as a ship of the same class and condition as before the accident, and capable of carrying on her original cargo, is not the test of the propriety of a condemnation; nor is it necessary that the repairs shall be done at the port of distress.

If repairs at the port of distress would exceed the value of the vessel, but she can, either with or without partial or temporary repairs, be safely sent home, or to some other repairing port, and there repaired at a total expense not exceeding her value when repaired, it is the duty of the master to take that course.

The principle laid down in the English Law Courts is that a vessel can only be considered a total loss when to repair her as a useful ship of any sort would be a waste of money.

In case a vessel cannot in any way be made seaworthy except at a cost exceeding her value when so repaired, and her condemnation therefore becomes unavoidable, it is the duty of the Agent to investigate carefully and to distinguish whether such condemnation is caused by perils of the sea or by any natural defect or decay.

Surveyors and Repairs.—In the event of repairs being necessary to enable a ship to proceed on her voyage, the Agent will see that properly qualified men are appointed surveyors.

It is necessary that the surveyors should distinguish as far as possible in their survey and estimates between the damage sustained during the voyage in which the vessel is actually engaged and the damages or defects existing prior thereto, and which are chargeable to the owners.

The surveyors should also in every case be requested to state in their survey—

1. The probable cost of complete repair at the port of distress, so as to enable the ship to carry on her cargo.
2. If she cannot be repaired there within her value, they should state whether, by means of partial or temporary repair, she can be made fit to proceed home or to another port for repairs, and the probable total cost of temporary and permanent repairs if such a course is adopted. Also whether she can carry any and what cargo while proceeding for repairs.

3. If she cannot, either by repairing at the port of distress, or elsewhere, be put into the same condition as before the casualty at a cost within her value, they should state whether she can, nevertheless, by means of less extensive repairs, be made seaworthy, and fit to carry cargoes of any and what description, at a cost less than her value when so repaired, and they should give an estimate of the cost of repairs of this nature.

Instructions to report on these heads should be included in the document appointing the surveyors.

Documents.—The necessary documents in cases of claim against the underwriters on the ship are—

1. The Protest, which should be compared with the Log Book and certified by the Agent, who should report any discrepancies that may be discovered between them.
2. Surveys, describing distinctly the cause of damage, and containing particulars mentioned in the paragraph headed "Surveyors and Repairs."
3. General account of disbursements.
4. Vouchers or receipted bills included in the general account, and discount or deduction of any sort when allowed.
5. Rate of Exchange.
6. The Bottomry Bond (when there is one).
7. The value of the ship and the certificate, according to Form B in the Schedule.

Survey.—Lloyd's Agent, if called on by the consignees of a cargo to certify damage, will only act as a surveyor when his own experience of the class of goods to be surveyed enables him to pronounce an accurate opinion. But when he does not act himself he will appoint properly qualified surveyors, whose signatures shall be authenticated by Lloyd's Agent. Care should be taken that the survey is conducted in accordance with the following general instructions:

1. When notice of damage is given before cargo is discharged, a special survey should be held on the hatches of the vessel, and particularly with reference to the stowage and dunnage.
2. Damage by sea water during the voyage should be carefully distinguished from damage arising from other causes, as, for example, from bad stowage or packing, vermin, pilfering, inherent causes, or from the goods having been exposed to rain or damp before shipping or after discharging.

The Agent should personally satisfy himself that these instructions are carried out.

Survey on Landing.—The survey of damage should take place as soon as the goods are landed, and with this object the Agent should immediately offer his services to the consignee. In the event of any delay taking place before the Agent's services are called in, the Agent should not refuse a survey, but should grant a certificate, with the date of the arrival of the vessel, and the date and place of survey prominently noted on it, and the Agent should state if any unavoidable cause has prevented an earlier survey being held.

Sound to be separated from Damaged.—The Agent is to see that the sound portions of each package are separated from the damaged, and he will particularise the quantity of each in his certificate. In the event of the separation of the sound goods from the damaged not being assented to by the consignees, the Agent will notify their objections on his certificate.

Goods landed in Craft.—In all ports where it is necessary to discharge goods into lighters or craft, the Agent is required to ascertain whether the person in charge of such lighter or craft has demanded of the master or mate of the vessel discharging a certificate, or himself given a receipt, expressing any apparent damage or defects in the goods delivered over to him; and the Agent is to make a note of the same upon his survey.

Deck Loads.—The Agent will ascertain and notify whether any and what goods were laden on deck.

Sale at an intermediate Port.—In the case of a vessel putting into an intermediate port, the Agent should protest against the sale of any part of the cargo unless absolutely necessary from its perishable condition.

In the case of a vessel being wrecked short of its destination, the Agent will offer to co-operate with the master or other representatives of the assured in procuring a conveyance for the cargo to its original destination in the best and most expeditious manner.

Sale to take place in reasonable time.—The sale should take place within a reasonable time from the period of landing, and the usual certificate of sound value should give the market value of the goods at the date of sale.

Exaggerated Valuations.—Care should be taken to guard against exaggerated valuations of sound goods; and if part of the goods arrive in a sound state, and are sold, a certified copy of the sale of such sound part should always be furnished.

Compromise.—The Agent may agree to an allowance being made to the consignees of goods damaged by sea water where the expenses for notarial documents, advertising, and other charges attendant upon sale by auction, would be disproportionate to the damage sustained and to the probable advantages to be gained by competition; but when the Agent exercises this power, he is always to append to his certificate of compromise that it is subject to the conditions of the policy of insurance on the goods in question, together with a certificate of the sound value of the goods.

The extent to which the above power may be exercised must be left to the discretion of the Agent, for whose guidance, however, it may be mentioned that, save under exceptional circumstances, which should be explained in the certificate, £30 is the limit of the aggregate allowances that should be made on any one consignment without obtaining the consent of the underwriters to dispense with public sale. Where the Agent has reason to fear a combination among the buyers at an auction, and therefore recommends a compromise of a larger amount than the above, and in all cases of doubt, he should communicate by telegraph with the Committee, who will at once endeavour to obtain specific instructions from the underwriters interested.

Documents.—The Documents required by the underwriter for the adjustment of average on goods damaged by sea water are as follows:

1. The Protest, which should be compared with the Log Book and certified by the Agent, who should report any discrepancies that may be discovered between them.
2. Survey on board and certificate of stowage.
3. Survey on goods landed, stating clearly cause and nature of damage; if the damage does not arise from sea water, the same should be certified, as well as its probable cause. The survey should also state the mode in which the goods were packed, and if in tin or zinc, whether properly soldered; and in cases of claim for leakage of liquids, the condition of the packages on landing, and whether the same were of good construction and fit for the voyage.
4. Custom House Certificate of rebate of duties on account of damage.
5. Certificate of the market price or value of the goods at the time of sale for cash if they had arrived free from damage, or certificate of the actual sale of the sound, which is always to be preferred.
6. Account sales of damaged goods duly certified and showing whether sold in bond or duty paid, and for cash or credit; and if for credit state what deduction for discount should be made to reduce the proceeds of sales to cash.
7. The Agent to certify on his certificate which of the charges described in the documents are extra in consequence of the damage, and if sold by auction whether any and what portion of the auctioneer's commission is returned, also if any and what charges are paid by the buyers of the goods.
8. In cases of damage to articles usually sold by weight, it is desirable, where practicable, to forward a certificate of the weight of the sea-damaged portion, also the total gross and net landing weight of the sound portion of each mark separately.

The Agent must on no account certify as to the correctness or incorrectness of accounts, nor as to whether they are fair and reasonable, but must confine his remarks to stating whether the persons who prefer the charges are worthy of confidence or otherwise.

Capture of Neutral Goods in Enemies' Vessels.—If the country in which the Agent resides is at war with any other country, and a captured vessel of that other country should be brought into any port within the Agent's district, he should watch the proceedings of the Prize Court, and endeavour to prevent any sale of the cargo either before or after the condemnation of the vessel as lawful prize.

In reporting the circumstance to Lloyd's, he should point out particularly what steps it will be necessary for the owners of the goods to take, whether in any local Marine Court or in the Central Court of Prize, to obtain possession of their goods, and should specify the documents which the Court will require for establishing the ownership of the goods, and for proving that the owners belong to a neutral country.

Property in Peril.—When a vessel is in distress or on shore within the limits of his district, it is the duty of Lloyd's Agent to make such arrangements with the master for recovering, saving, or preserving the property as may be deemed expedient. It is repeated that the Agent, by this instruction, is not empowered to accept an abandonment of either ship or cargo.

Salvage.—In all cases where salvage or remuneration is claimed for assistance rendered to vessels, the Agent should attend the meetings of commissioners, magistrates, or other persons legally authorised to determine the amount in order to rebut, by the evidence of the master and crew, any exaggerated statements on the part of the salvors.

Salvage for Recapture.—It has frequently happened, when a vessel has been captured and recaptured, that instead of the salvage being paid, and the vessel proceeding to her port of destination, both vessel and cargo have been sold for the payment of salvage, and the loss of the underwriters been thereby much increased. It is therefore incumbent on the Agent to endeavour, upon every occasion, to take such steps as appear requisite for an adjustment of the salvage, so that the vessel may proceed with her cargo to her port of destination.

Salvage Proceeds.—In the event of salvage proceeds of either ship or cargo passing into the hands of the Agent, he is at once, if there is no owner or agent of the owner on the spot to receive them, to remit the same, in bank bills if possible, together with the documents required for the division of the amount, to the Committee of Lloyd's, who will take the necessary steps to distribute the proceeds amongst the persons interested.

Average Statements.—The Agent is not to make up or sign any statement of average, either general or particular, but should leave any claim to be adjusted between the underwriters and the assured, upon the documents furnished.

The following is a Copy of a Circular issued by the Committee of

LLOYD'S REGISTER OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN SHIPPING TO THE SURVEYORS OF THAT SOCIETY.

2, White Lion Court, Cornhill, E.C.
21st May, 1884.

SPECIAL REPORTS OF DAMAGE.

Sir,

I have to acquaint you that the Committee's attention has recently been drawn to the subject of Special Reports or Certificates of Damage, issued to Shipowners and others, in which documents a want of uniformity has been observed in the manner in which they are drawn up by different Surveyors. Reports of this nature being used as a basis upon which to determine an equitable settlement of claims arising between Shipowners and Underwriters, the Committee attach great importance to their being made out in a systematic manner and with the strictest accuracy, so that they may prove completely reliable in all cases, and I have to request your careful observance of the following points in drawing up documents of this kind :—

1. A Survey requested by any other person than the Owner should be held only upon the understanding that the Owner is a consenting party, and the words "and with the consent of the Owner" should be inserted in the Report after the name of the person requesting the survey.

2. The Surveyors should not adopt as their own assertions statements made to them assigning the cause of the Damage, but describe the Damage as "stated" or "alleged" to have been sustained in a certain way, making reference to the Log Book and Protest for particulars of the occurrence.

3. They should then proceed to set forth, with all necessary detail and preciseness, the whole of the Special Damage which they find upon personal inspection. Having described the Damage they find, the Surveyors are to state as fully and precisely (and as far as possible in the same order) the whole of the repairs they recommend with a view to placing the vessel, or the Machinery, in as good condition as it was in before having sustained the Damage in question. All numbers and sizes should be given in writing, instead of in figures.

4. The Surveyors should carefully exclude from their recital of Damage whatever is clearly the effect of ordinary tear and wear or natural decay. In any case also where any portion of the Damage found is of such a nature that it must obviously be due to other than the alleged cause, the particulars of such portion of the Damage should be dealt with separately in the Report.

5. If, in any case, in order to meet the convenience of the parties concerned, the Surveyors are requested upon to recommend repairs of a temporary nature only, the fact that such repairs are not intended to be final should be clearly shown in the Report, and also in any document which may be issued certifying to the execution of the repairs as recommended.

6. As the Committee disapprove of the Society's support being given to claims the accuracy of which the Society's Officers are not in a position to certify from personal knowledge, the Surveyors are not to enumerate articles alleged to have been lost in connection with the occurrence of the Damage, except such articles as belong to the ship's actual equipment regarding the loss of which the Surveyors may have no reasonable doubt. It is of course open to the Owners of vessels or their Representatives to put forward statements of other losses upon their own responsibility, and such documents may be attached to the reports; but the Surveyors should make it quite clear that they do not certify to the accuracy of such statements.

7. The amount of fees (and travelling expenses, if any) charged upon a survey for Special Damage should be set forth on the Report, and the nature of the survey should be indicated on the receipt issued upon payment of the charges.

8. A copy of the Special Report of Damage should be forwarded in every case to this Office (with the usual Report of Survey for Repairs, if there be one). A duplicate press copy, if clear, will be quite sufficient for this purpose.

Should there be any points in regard to which you stand in need of further explanation, I have to request that you will be so good as to address me on the subject.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

B. WAYMOUTH,
Secretary.
